Arthur J. Collins

Should a list of men who have spent their life for the betterment of education be made, the name, Arthur J. Collins, would be among the uppermost. Throughout his 40 years of teaching, Mr. Collins has always worked unceasingly to improve and develop his methods. Since 1912 he has been associated with North Central high school. His retirement from Harvard debates, which are now so much a part of our school life, were originated by him. The rules governing the debates were written by him and he contributed toward the trophies that are awarded each year.

During his 23 years of teaching at North Central, Mr. Collins has always had large classes, proving his popularity with the stuactive service in the classroom, this June, will not mean retirement from educational work because work in the field of education is a part of life for Mr. Collins.

In addition to his courses in the social sciences—United States history, world history, sociology, psychology—he conducted economic classes for bank clerks for six winters, and two economics classes for college extension courses sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. The dents, and, throughout all his years of teaching he has missed only one month, that four years ago, a record anyone may pride himself on having made.

When Mr. Collins closes his North Central class book for the last time in June, the school, both the students and the faculty, will lose a man who will receive and will well deserve the highest praises for his fine work as an educator and as a friend.

Senior Honor Roll

With a perfect record of straight A's for their scholastic work at North Central, Marjorie Dunbar, Harvey Frazier, Will Lee and Antoinette Arnold lead the Senior A honor roll of 42 students.

Never before in the school's history have four students completed, at the same time, their work at this high school with a perfect average. All of the other students who placed on the honored list had high averages.

Wilbur Harris and Genevieve Doughty tied for second place. These two scholars had an average of 3.79 just ahead of William Kranzush who had the fine average of 3.71.

Out of the first seven positions of the list there were four boys and three girls.

The grades are rated: A, four points; B, three; C, two; D, one. The list in the order of ranking is:

Marjorie Dunbar
Harvey Frazier
Will Lee
Antoinette Arnold
Wilbur Harris
Genevieve Doughty

Class Prophecy

Calling all cars! Calling all cars! This is the captain and two lieutenants speaking from headquarters. Before you leave the station be sure to check on your gas and oil.

Strictly on the side, folks, this is going to be fun. Oh, oh, a flash had just arrived that Bill Nicoles was elected "Kingfish" of Louisiana for a second term.

Calling car 19. Proceed to Madison Square garden and pick up "Clutch" Haberman and Harold Murphy, the "Irish love-bird." Charges of exciting a riot will be filed against them over their main-event "rasslin" match.

Officer Barker turn on the radio. Ah, this day of radio and television; Benson Byers and Dorothy Bradford have just been awarded a radio contract for their fine piano-flute duet.

Um de dum and a heigh de ho! My, what a catchy tune those three—What! Not our friends Craig Batchelor, Woodrow Grant and John Miller of high school days. Well, well, well.

There's a fine vaudeville at the Dilufunique now. Our old pals, the "Code" Sisters, Jeanne Peak, Essie Bradshaw and Charles Uhden are the featured entertainers. Charles Johnson is the master of ceremonies at Spokane's new high spot.

Harvey Frazier is now producing Lawrence Ame's play, "What Is Love?" in Hollywood, starring George Van Herset and Anne Jones.

Calling car 35! Pick up Roger Snow for beating up his wife, Antoinette Arnold, at Almquist's rooming house. Claire Raney, the chambermaid, reported this to Officer Wood, who was on that beat.

Hello, yes, yes, is that a fact! Say Officers Weis and Salter, go over to Commissioner Mellen's office and arrest that stock and bond salesman, Robert Little, who is annoying Helen Gale with his foolish hahhle about his experiences with Scotch people.

Tsk tsk, this generation of hot air. It's too bad they can't all be like those young philanthropists, James Coomhs and Howard Duhamel. I understand they have just given $1.27 apiece to the Daugharty-Hoefer orphanage.

Here comes that super-inhuman salesman, Boh Lewis. He probably wants us to buy an interest in his traveling flea circus. What a relief. He just gave us a couple of tickets to the "Fireman's Benefit," starring "Rubinoff"

Low and Dick Hoffman in "Duet Imperial."

Speaking of tickets reminds me that I saw Dorothy Kennedy and Regina Limacher ushering at the Wolf theater, now owned and operated by Stan Zappei and Fran Hanson.

"Hello, yes, oh, it's you, Mrs. R. Fossum LaLonde. Yes, I'll tell them to report. Calling car 26, quit scaring the Davidson kids with those false whiskers and proceed to the corner of Fifth and Wall and pick up Elizabeth Buchecker, who is charged with talking Roland Witt to death. Tell Officer Kapek to take the body to Pauline Lee's undertaking parlor.

"Really, folks, this is one tough job. Quick, Cio, the Flit!"

"What's that, Mac—O. K."

Calling car number 3—break up the crowd on Main and Stevens where Ellen McDonough is speaking on "The Defense of the Irish Free State."

Mildred Wurth, hostess on the good ship, Swemke, tells us that the famous artist, Fern McLain, went back to Paris last week. On the same boat was James Gump, the movie magnate. He's crazy about Fern, but even his smoothest proposal didn't attract her. She's too hard to please. Surely Cliff Hampton, Byron Boyer or Harlow Willard should have some good points, but she turned them all down flat.

Guess who we saw in the Conners' Follies yesterday—Lorna Jacobs, Esther Gorremans, Yvonne Gerimonte, Beatrice Hinman and Anita Henderson. Some class!—Oh, yes of '35.

Latest news flash—Merle Myhre is still stirring up revolutions down in Mexico. His side kick, Howard Ewing, was just made president of Mexico as a result of their latest campaign.

Car 3, also investigate the organ grinder, Glen Sherwin, whose monkey is charged with borrowing a pie from the window of Miss P. Jolley.

Officers Bayles and Beehe take some men to the airport and break up the crowd around the plane of Beth Davis, twice-around-the-world flyer. Catherine Cory, her co-pilot, says it was easy. Those gals have got some nerve. They came in first in the trans-continental race last year against Russell Boehning, Howard Fry, Ray Conhoy and Doris Fields.

I hear that the judge suspended the sentences of Viola Mueller and Audrey Ryan, who were arrested last week for fighting over the affections of Ashby Price.

"Why, hello, Judge Kranzush, how are you? Sure, I'll go to court with you." Well, here we go off to court for a session in which Bruce Hoesly is charged with picking Margery Brown's kangaroo's pocket.

Ah, here we are and poor old Bruce looks kind of gully and there's dear old Irene Schumacher in the front row. Take a look at that jury. It surely looks bad for the defendant. There's Bob Jones, foreman of the jury, who runs a real estate office in his spare time. Carol J. D. Catheart and Muriel Hammer, workers in the five and ten cent store, are sitting next to him with Reverend Miles Tooke looking on with a bored air.

There's Harry Campbell, former all-American tackle from Whittan "U" sitting next to Al Corvi, big banana shipping magnate.

Ah me, Helen Gardner, the renowned poet, still chews gum with much gusto. Next to her, Phyllis Boomer and Ad Benner are trying to psycho-analyze the prisoner.

Poor old Bill Brown has had a bad time of it since Marjorie Campbell sued him for heartbalm. Lawyer Luenow won the case naming Betty Lee Hancock as the third party in the triangle.

There in the last jury seat is none other than Professor Robert Olsen, head of the horticulture department at Gladstone college.

"What a jury to convince," says Ed Stimson, attorney for the defense. The way Jack Winston, prosecuting attorney looks, one would think that he had a clinch. All of this palaver about practical jokes and insanity has bored the audience to such a condition that Bailiff Piper has arrested Emory Baker, Jack Holsclaw, Vivian Schaffer and Marjorie Neuman for contempt of court already, and has warned Pete Pupo and Lawrence Randall against further outburst.

It looks as if those kangaroo shoes found on the defendant's person are going to be the deciding bit of evidence against him. That society "deb," Barbara Brodrecht, won't be able to save him even if she decides to use her money in his defense.

The state has brought in a surprise witness in the person of Renard Faraca, erstwhile owner and sole driver of the Mussel-Inni taxi company. He claims to have seen the prisoner put the said kangaroette in his pocket before entering his "Beardsley" special.

Well, after deliberating for more than two hours and thirteen minutes, the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Here comes officers Oncal and Stoddard, running as if they had something important to say.

"What's that? A wreck at Division and Trent? O. K., right away. Somebody send for "Sawbones" Caputo, it might be more serious than we think. Officer Huffman, step on it over to Division and Trent. Get that siren going and let's make a little speed."

Here we are now, wow, what a gory mess! A wreck with Wilbur Harris driving, and I was just about to give him a job as the personal chauffeur to "Old lady" Munday. That other car is pretty well banged up, too. That rascal, Chuck Mickey, will get another three months for this if I have anything to say about it. His wife, Mary Louise Shields, got a face-lifting free of charge out of the wreck. Her friend, Thelma Sanford, wasn't hurt much except for having her pride shaken a little bit, but Willard Ohland, her fiance, was taken the hospital with a broken leg. He probably won't be able to run again.

Riding with Harris was Bill Henry and his wife, Betty Heath Henry, and her friend, Corajean Charlton, the social service worker. All were badly shaken up and are suffering from shock.

Here we are, giving our time to trifling matters when we should be at the station minding our own business. Courtney, let us away. Stop on the corner and get me a copy of the Gazette from Will Lee, owner, editor, reporter and newsboy, printed daily by Lake and Company, printers.

Ob, Oh! here's a notice in the paper signed by the "Committee of Five." It says that there will be a reunion of the class of June '35 at the home of Marjorie Dunbar, noted authority on "Parents' Problems."

Ah, Courtney, those were the good old days.

But wait, who are these people who sign their names under "Committee of Five." Well, well, we should have known, Jack Bierce, Donna Dalton, Bob Loacker, Bernadine Correll and Joe Zanger. We'll be there with bells on.

So until that day comes along, we bid you a fond farewell, comrades in study. We'll be seein' yo' all then.

Sobbingly signed:

R. R. Dickson Jr., Captain

Miss Mae Collins, Lieut.

Miss Cleo West, Lieut.

Class History

'Twas in the fall of '31
We entered in these halls—
We came though we were awful dumb
'Twas in the fall of '31.

Here is a tale bequeathed to you, my children, by the wise, high and mighty seniors. Look upon and profit by this history of the big chiefs.

In September of 1931, 200 or more bright-eyed papooses whooped their way into the Realm of Higher Learning, the land which is filled with the bugaboos and ghosts of the languages, mathematics, histories, sciences and other horrible creatures of equal notoriety. Some of our comrades fell by the wayside right from the start. The great majority, however, managed to win out in their struggles with these demons, and they proved their ability to become members of the renowned tribe of sophomores along with the saplings (consult dictionary) from the neighboring village of Havermale.

Some of this group picked up their tomtoms, etc. and made sweet music for all the assemblies of the North Side "Injuns." Then some of the deeper talents found expression in poetry, writing and oratory.

Then our junior year passed as junior years will with our being by this time well-known fixtures around the building. Studies first occupied our minds, then football, basketball, baseball, tennis and golf. As always, the class made an excellent showing in everything they undertook to do, and the first thing we knew we were seniors. Ah, I relish the word—senior—doesn't it sound delicious. It is delicious as you will see.

With a steady tread we filed in to take council with our instructors to successfully complete our last year in the happy hunting ground for knowledge, namely, North Central. Leading the tribe were: Chief Bill Nicoles, Betty Lee Hancock, Scribe Al Corvi and Wampum Keeper Bruce Hoesly. At this point we lost our able guide, Miss Edith Greenberg, to the Big Chief.

Indian contests claimed many of the members of our class. Bob Dickson piloted our Indian football team to victory over our arch enemies, the South Side Tigers, just before the annual Thanksgiving day feast. The Braves who proudly carried the pigskin on that historic day for the last time under the Red and Black were: Lee, Randall, Murphy, Haberman, Campbell and Dickson.

Soon after this came the all school musical success, the operetta, "Rose of the Danube." Members of our graduating class who took leading vocal parts were: John Miller, Kathryn Almquist and Angela Daugharty. There were also many charming dancers too numerous to mention here.

Now in the final channels of our school careers we again picked Nicoles to lead us through our last semester, Dorothy Kennedy as his assistant, Sid Piper to keep the records and Robert Little, a treasurer. Medicine Man Ramsey, as always, took care of the trials and tribulations of preparing us for Commencement.

The art of argumentation was upheld by Emory Baker. Straight A records made by Harvey Frazier, Marjorie Dunbar and Will Lee gave them the scholastic lead of the class.

Hoopsters Murphy, Nicoles, Johnson, Holsclaw, Piper and Randall, ably carried us to a second place in the city series in basketball.

"Grow Green Grass on the Gridiron" became the slogan during our last days. Many pay cons helped to finance the project. It is important to mention here that Masque Moods of 1935 was one of the best of all these convocations.

With the coming of spring fever also came baseball with the necessity of practice on the Cannon playground until our own field is nicely sodded. It is a little too early to tell you the outcome of the city series in baseball.

Leadership has asserted itself through offices in the Girls' League and Boys' Federation. Dorothy Bradford and Bill Nicoles held the high offices assisted by Bob Dickson, Betty Lee Hancock, Phyllis Corey, Mel Haberman and Ellen McDonough.

Now the Senior Dramatics class began to have "Growing Pains." This seems a little delayed but nevertheless they had them. Leads were taken by Ruth Van Patten, Harlow Willard, Albert Myers, Antoinette Arnold, Angela Daugharty, Benson Byers and Miles Tooke. The play was directed by Grace Douglas Leonard and cadet Violet Skoane.

The semi-annual Indian Prom was a huge

Class Will

We, the departing young men and women of the class of June '35 by our gracious generosity do hereby endow to those little children destined to follow in our footsteps the following tokens in perpetuation of our memory.

By the generosity of Jack Winston it is inevitable that some frosh will get the mumps.

Bill Nicoles leaves that mysterious technique of landing teachers' nieces to Bruce Ek.

Cleo West leaves her dancing ability to Carter Amundson.

"Rabbit" Lee leaves his ability to make good speeches to that up and coming statesman entering this establishment in the spring of 1943.

That "crimson blush" of Carol Jean Davis is being left to Bill Jesmer.

And "Chuck" Mickey bestows upon young Margie Sanders that so-called car of his. Model T.

Al Corvi is leaving his high and mighty opinion of Al Corvi to anybody. (Who wants it?)

Mel Haberman is leaving his oversized number "11's" to Margaret Hoffman.

"Shorty Frame" Johnson leaves his lanky frame to that tall young man, John Harris.

Boh Loacker donates his "manly ways" to Austen Raney.

Merle Myhre gladly gives his "polish" to Frances Weiser.

Francis Hanson donates his "riding habit" to Mardy Mady.

Dot and Dash Johnson leave to Grace Pentz, who is trying to land "he men," the ability to do so.

Robert Little leaves that treasured black eye to the first guy who tries to cut the next guy's throat.

Bob Weis leaves his ungovernable crust to Louise Zapf.

Betty Lee Hancock leaves everything to "Rod."

Helen Gale gladly leaves her match-making to the next unlucky person who arranges the seating at the next Associated Student councils' dinner.

Lawrence Randall gives "his way with the women" to Bill Herrington.

George Van Herset adds his football physique to John Blxhy's good looks.

Stan Zapell leaves his chance to "rate" with Margaret Monroe.

Barbara Brodrecht's knitting technique goes to that huge girl, Olive Stocks.

Regina Limacher gives to Joy Thompson her lovely wardrobe.

Ray Mellen bestows upon this institution the most inspiring of automobiles.

Dorothy Bradford leaves her envied complexion to the many who desire and admire it.

Wilbur Harris is not going to will over his over-whelming personality—he's going to keep it.

To the shortest frosh in this dear old establishment, Lowell Christian donates his four feet six inches.

Gennie Barnett is hopefully wishing that those beautiful blonde tresses of Pauline Lee will be bestowed upon her.

Bill Brown sadly hands over his "pestering ways" to Ary Nason.

Edgar Salter says he doesn't want to leave anything, least of all Jean Cleave.

Will Keeling has to leave his dating to the next library monitor.

Mae Collins gives her serenity to that hoisterous one, Helen Galley.

Elizabeth Buchecker has finally consented to give her new red pique formal to Nancy Kneec.

Dick Hoffman and Essie Bradshaw leave two not so had accordians to "Hill Billy" Phil Frazier.

Ruby Fossum leaves those big "dazzling pools" to someone who can flirt with them to a better advantage.

"Fire Chief" Sid Piper lets his mythical badge go to that fiery man, Louis Contos.

"Tarzan" Miles Tooke bestows upon "Pee Wee" Anderson that which has made him famous, that elephantine build.

Boh Jones, big heartedly, leaves a bit of catnip to the "Kittles," Kat Worrel and Kat Cuffel.

Viola Mueller has quite a bit of this and that which she doesn't mind leaving to Sylvia M'schbach.

Victor Clivle launched a not so bad model airplane (kid stuff) in the direction of Jack

Principal's Message

To the Members of the Class of June 1935:

I am using this opportunity, given me by the Tamarack editor, to say "congratulations" and "goodby."

Congratulations upon completing the year of attendance and study in North Central necessary to gain your diplomas. These years have been happy ones for most of you; you see the truth of that more clearly, now they are over. You have joined a great host of people who are near your own age and who, all throughout this country, are being graduated from high school. Another and still larger host are facing life without your advantages of education and mental discipline. Together you make up your generation—American youth of today. Perhaps you owe a little more to society as a whole, including this great group of young people who have not had your advantages; because, today, you are receiving your diplomas from high school.

There is as much work in the world now as there ever was. Some one will do it, poorly or well. I feel sure you will meet your responsibilities the better for having been a part of this school.

Your group will soon be scattered. Many of your classmates will live, for the most part, from now on only in your cherished memories of North Central. This has been your school home for four years, or less; let it continue to be; keep in touch with your friends through North Central.

Goodby. We wish you success and, with it, much happiness.

Rolling Logs

FIRST PRIZE STORY

By Doris Eichelberger

The tramp spat on the floor, hitched up his pants, and sidled closer. Hell, yes! The river was ugly. It'd get yuh after awhile. But what'd anyone wanta look at it for? The man, leaning over the railing had been staring at the waters below, the dark, turbulent, repelling waters for hours. What'd the crazy fool want to stare at it anyway? Slyly, cautiously he slid closer, 'til at last he was at the man's shoulder.

"Cold water, buddy, too cold to take a dip in." And he added slyly, "I know an easier way."

The man did not move.

"Hey there, did yuh hear me?" Silence. He shrieked into the man's ear. "Hey, buddy are yuh deaf?" Slowly the man turned.

"No, I'm not deaf." And with a sudden fury he added, "I wish to God I was." He shuddered and a fierce flame lept up in the red-rimmed eyes. "I—wish—to—God—I—was!" Moodily he turned to the water and muttered, jerking the words out over his shoulder. "—wish—I was—make it easier to do it that way —" The tense lean body suddenly whirled around and in a strangely calm voice he added "There are worse things than death." A shudder ran through the gaunt, ravaged man, a shudder that broke the dams of his resistance. The walls were down and a tumbling torrent of words was loosed. In an incoherent fury he raged on, a tirade against men and death.

The tramp shrank back, frightened with the man's fury. With a wrench the man gained control of himself. With a bitter laugh he stopped. His black eyes glowed with a fierce inner flame, the lean face twisted into a sardonic smile. "Death! What is Death!" A demonic laugh rang out and the taut body crumpled up and sagged against the steel bars.

The tattered beggar whined, "Now governor, I ain't meaning it. Come on now, buck up. Things ain't never that bad." And casting frightened glances over his shoulder, the tramp shuffled away, mumbling to himself.

The man did not even know that he was gone. He lay in a stupor, slumped against the steel bars, staring blindly around the deserted end of the bridge. His head fell lower, his cheek touched the cold steel. With a start of terror, he lurched to his feet and crouched low, wildly staring around. Bars! Steel bars! But, no, he wasn't back there. He was free. . . free. . . free. . . . It was only the bridge railing, after all. A tremor ran through him. Was he always to be haunted by that fear?

He turned to the water and stared dully below. There was nothing left. He might as well stop here as to go through life dodging people. . . himself. . . memories. . . . A slight movement below caught his attention. A log, wildly bobbing around, bruised and battered, was free from the catch-all. Bitterly he thought to himself, "That's me, bobbing aimlessly around in life, too weak to get any place." But the log had been caught in the undercurrent and was whirling down the stream. Fascinated, the man watched it struggle. A thought entered his mind. If the log got through, so would he! He tried to shake the idea off as a fancy of an over-worked mind. Deep in his heart he knew it could be true. Fear grasped him when the log stopped, shivered, and caught in a whirl pool, sunk! Sick longing came over him. "Yes," he thought, "That's me all right. Pulled under by the whirlpools of life." A tiny ray of hope remained, unquenchable. The log had to get through! A man's life depended on it! Despairingly he scanned the water, hope against hope. He was just turning away when he saw a barely perceptible movement in the water. The end of the log could barely be seen sticking valiantly up. It was coming through. Battered and bruised, yes, but victorious. Slowly he straightened up and threw his shoulders back. No prison record would prove a whirlpool to him. He was coming through.

A whimsical smile touched his lips, and slowly he came to attention, saluted the log. Then, shoulders up with the light of battle in his eyes he turned and whistling marched back to life.

The Shadow of the Sunken Cave

SECOND PRIZE STORY

By Hugh Kirkpatrick

"Paul! Paul!"

At the sharp note of terror in Larry's cry, Paul dropped his rifle and plunged through the brush at the riverbank, to see his younger brother fall into the swirling spring flood of the Clark Fork River, still clinging to a branch from the tree which he had been climbing.

The two boys, hiking for the day in the woods, had stopped to rest, while Paul practiced his marksmanship with an old stump as a target and Larry studied a bird's nest in a tall birch tree.

"Paul!"

The fear in Larry's call brought Paul to attention. Wading up to his knees in the water, he grabbed at the branch, but could not reach it. In dismay he ran along the bank in the direction in which the current was carrying Larry.

He had to save his brother! Larry could swim a stroke or two, but he wouldn't last a minute without the branch in that swollen and raging torrent.

Paul was a good swimmer—one of the best—but he shrank from the water. He had done so ever since last summer. Only Larry understood why, but even Larry couldn't understand the haunting, pressing dread that had gripped him since that terrible day last July in the Sunken Caves, farther up this same wild and beautiful river.

It was this fear that kept him on the bank now.

"Hang on, Larry! The branch will wash closer to the shore in a minute. I'll catch it and pull you in. Hang on, hang on!" Paul half sobbed his calls.

"He'll drift in—he's all right—he's holding on—I'll get him," he exclaimed as, scratching himself on the bushes, slipping in the wet grass, he ran on, not looking where he was going, his eyes fixed on the frightened face and the bobbing branch in the water. "There, it's coming closer—no! But it will—I won't have to go in the water—I can't—the water—"

At the thought Paul was back again in the Sunken Caves with Larry. That day they had discovered a subterranean cavern that had its outlet in the Sunken Caves. Paul had decided to explore it, although Larry had warned him it was a crazy idea. Drawing a long breath, Paul had pushed himself down under water.

He had let the current carry him for a short distance, then had attempted to come up for air. But everywhere his reaching hand touched rock. Where was the hole by which he had entered? Again he had felt around him. His lungs had begun to ache. He had become panic stricken. Madly he turned and turned. Noises had begun to pound in his ears. He was afraid.

Suddenly his eyes, straining in an effort to see under water, had made out a blur of white moving just ahead of him. His brother's legs! Larry, frightened when his brother failed to come back to the surface, had rightly guessed that Paul couldn't find the opening from the cavern. There was one way to help, and Larry had taken it. Grasping the rocky ledge where he was sitting, he had lowered himself into the water as far as he could and wiggled his legs, hoping that Paul would see them. Paul grasped Larry's ankle and guided himself to the opening.

"He saved my life that day," Paul muttered. "I've got to save his—I'll reach him—I won't have to go in the water—"

The thought "Coward, coward," flashed through his mind. But that terrible feeling in the cave!

"Paul!"

The cry was weak this time. Suddenly the branch splashed in the river, as Larry's arm weakened. Then he sank from sight.

Fear rose stronger and stronger, clutching at Paul's throat. He was pulling at his shoes.

Larry's head rose above water. He was struggling to keep afloat by swimming as best he could. Maybe he could get in alone, after all. The cowardly hope swept over his brother on the bank.

Larry's face turned toward the bank. "I—I can stick it—till—you reach me."

Paul heard the words as if from far away. "Till—you reach me." Then—then Larry did not know he was afraid? Larry didn't expect him to be a coward.

Paul dived far out into the water. Down, down he went. That terrible feeling came again, the fear that he wouldn't come up! But he had to! Larry was sticking it! The current caught Paul at the surface; an eddy slapped the water in his face; but Paul forced his arms into a powerful stroke. Then he grasped the drowning lad.

Struggling, beating against the current, they made the bank.

Frightened and tired, Larry lay exhausted, "G-gosh, Paul, that was some struggle!"

"Yes—some fight!" Paul answered.

"To Every Man There Cometh—"

SECOND PRIZE STORY

By Dorothy Serley

Eternity! He repeated the word over and over again. It rang in his ears like the clamor of some heavy object falling, always falling, it seemed, toward the endless bottom of Infinity. He had always thought of Eternity as that Quiet Rest with an indescribable atmosphere of pure peace. Peace that you could feel—peace that you could almost touch. He was mistaken. He was sure that he must, because this Eternity began every morning with the clang of the huge iron bells, and it ended every evening, when he, with other characterless men marched slowly, reluctantly back behind those great gray walls—prison walls. But it started all over again when night faded into dawn. It was those walls that rendered him void of human qualities. Why, even the sun, that heavenly body that waxed men's hearts warm with the reality of living, failed to reach him through those walls. It seemed almost incredible that mere walls which were man-made could have more effect upon his life than the God-created sun. The thought gave him an empty, hopeless feeling. It was these moods that he hated. They seemed to drag his mind down until his one thread of hope—that it wouldn't always be like this—almost broke. Funny, wasn't it, what fear could do to a mind. It was fear that put him, and all those others, where he was. Fear and distrust.

Fear was the predominant element in his every day life. He wondered if the same fear would take him away from within those walls. He had lost all identity when he had first passed through the gates. From then on he had become merely No. 134974. He repeated his name to himself—Peter Flint, Peter Flint. It sounded strange to him. Could one's own name sound strange in any sense of the word? He wondered what he should do if someone should suddenly call him by his name. Was he going insane? Others had done so. No. 134974 shook himself from his deep, pensive mood and wondered how long he had been sitting on the edge of his cot, thinking. He spent all his waking hours alike—thinking.

Suddenly he heard a rustle of keys. When he looked up he found himself facing the guard. He was bringing the evening meal. Mechanically he took the proffered plate of food. He set it down beside him on the cot with the cup of coffee. He looked disinterestedly at the food. It was good food—a baked potato, a small well-done steak, buttered peas and a roll. He should be hungry, but he wasn't. Food always reminded him of home. As he drank the cup of steaming liquid, his mind wandered to the days back there. How regularly he had done the things that every normal boy of those days did! He had carried in wood reluctantly, he had continually quarrelled with Peg, his sister, teasing her about the evening caller, and had trudged slowly to Sunday School every Sunday. From an average boy he had become a man who had, in an insane rage, killed a man—his own flesh and blood. He hadn't meant to, God knew—. oh, what was the use of going over it all again? The excuse he had offered was as lame as it had sounded. He deserved his punishment. He wished only that there might be something left for him to do to make his life worth living—something worth while to contribute to those who would be left. He had been taught that no man no matter what depths his soul had known, should ever give up because there was always some way by which a partial atonement could be made. He had spent many an hour out on the rockpile where he worked every day, wondering if there could be such a last chance for him.

He set the cup down and lay on his cot. When the guard came back, he saw Peter Flint sleeping. He would have thought it a sound sleep had not the expression on Peter's face told the guard that it was a fitful rest.

As if in answer to prayer, the next day the warden summoned Peter to his office. After he had been ushered in, he stood in front of the huge desk, nervously shifting his eyes about the room. The place reminded him so much of the world—so cold and forbidding.

"Flint," the warden looked squarely into Peter's face, "you've seemed a bit restless lately. It is anything that you could tell me?"

"No, sir," Peter answered in a surprisingly calm, low voice.

"Well, I am going to let you work on the grounds starting tomorrow." There are shrubs and grass that have to be taken care of, and we thought we might add a few gardens to the grounds. If you'd like it any better out there, you may work with the gardener awhile."

"Thanks, warden, I would like it." When Peter was dismissed and had returned to his cell, he wondered whether he had sounded ungrateful. He hadn't meant to be, but the new job was a bit unexpected. For the first time during the entire period he had spent in the prison, Peter took an interest in everything. That night the guard carried an empty supper plate back to the kitchen.

The next day marked a new era in the life of No. 134974. He approached his new work with the zest of one about to undertake something in which the good to be derived exceeded by far the good contributed. He loved to trim green shrubs, because they seemed alive. He watched the flowers blossom and burst into bloom under his living care. He loved the feeling of the cool, damp earth against his hands and the smell of it in his nostrils. Working with the flowers brought him closer to their Maker. His eyes were lighted with an indescribable light of contentment and peace. No one realized the full significance of this transformation as did Peter's inner self.

One morning, a few weeks after Peter assumed the responsibility of caring for the grounds, the guard looked in upon a sleeping man. This time it was not a fitful rest. Complete relaxation and an unworried mind was portrayed in every line of his face. No. 134974 had been given a chance.

HEAT WAVES

FIRST PRIZE POEM

By Raymond Keller

Like a thin sheet of water noislessly rippling.

Like the surface of a quiet pool.

Heat Waves.

Rising mysteriously from nowhere to make the landscape quiver.

Yes, like quiet pool rippling,
Or like haze that greys
the yellow of the sun.

The world sways and moves strangely

Weird and like the crazy impressions seen through tear filled eyes
That are like quiet pools.

SECOND PRIZE POEM

By Shirley Freese

I have fled from the road
Where the rabble has been
From the dreary abode
That is crowded with men.

I have fled from the way
That is teeming with life
From the wintry day
That is gloomy with strife.

I have gone to the road
That leads up to the hill
To a peaceful abode
That is silent and still.

I am seeking the way
That the angels have trod
And the glorious day
That I hope to see God.

THEATRE MASQUE

"Masque Moods of 1935" was presented at a pay convocation, Thursday, March 14, by members of the Theatre Masque club. The proceeds of the convocation, which amounted to $90.00, was given to the playfield fund which is being used to grass the playfield. An original theme was carried out, the stage being the deck of an ocean liner.

Students talented in music, dancing and drama are admitted to the club at the beginning of each semester by tryout. Mrs. Grace Douglas Leonard, dramatics and speech teacher, is the club's adviser.

Mother Presents Trees to School

Mr. and Mrs. Kikumatsu Miyaki, of Spokane, have presented to North Central high school two flowering cherry trees as an evidence of their love and respect for the school. The trees were planted one on either side of the west entrance.

Mrs. Miyaki is Jack Koyama's mother. Jack was graduated from the school with high honors this January and was prominent in school affairs. The planting of the trees took place with appropriate ceremony at 2 p. m. Wednesday, April 17.

SEEKING

FIRST PRIZE POEM

By Raymond Keller

A river flows hurriedly by.
It never stops
For in the night I can hear
It grumbling softly as it passes.
And always in the morning
I can see it moving restlessly in its course.
A great, dull thing, greyish-green
Sometimes flecked with the gold of the sun.
Why does it never cease?
Has it a goal too?

Senior Dramatics

"Growing Pains," a comedy in three acts, was presented by the senior dramatics class in May under the capable direction of Mrs. Grace Douglas Leonard.

The play, written by Aurania Rouveral, offered a marked contrast, as to type, from the play of the previous semester. Packed with laughs, it was a comedy of adolescence, and proved to be one of the most enjoyable ever given at North Central. The plot concerned the growing up process of George and Terry McIntyre while their parents look on helplessly. The part of George was played with sincerity, spirit and understanding by Harlow Willard, while Ruth Van Patten, as the kid sister, ran the gamut from awkward tomboyishness through the first pangs of jealousy to radiant young womanhood. The harassed father was well portrayed by Albert Myers with Antoinette Arnold playing the role of the tender, sympathetic wife and mother.

The play was particularly enjoyable, because everyone in the class was given a chance to portray a character, all of them different types. Angela Daugharty, playing the part of Prudence, the conscious charmer and heart breaker, was very stunning in the play. The domineering Mrs. Patterson was amusingly characterized by Helen Gardner with Carol Jean Davis as her shy and timid daughter.

The cast included:

George	Harlow Willard
Terry	Ruth Van Patten
Mrs. McIntyre	Antoinette Arnold
Mr. McIntyre	Albert Myers
Prudence	Angela Daugharty
Brian	Benson Byers
Mrs. Patterson	Helen Gardner
Elsie	Carol Jean Davis
Dutch	Miles Tooke
Patty	Claire Raney
Omar	Roger Snow
Hal	Marvin Courtney
Traffic Officer	Emory Baker
Jane	Virginia Madison
Pete	John Miller
Miriam	Viola Mueller
Sophie	Beth Davis
Vivian	Bernice Bentley

Others who supported the cast were: Faith Freund, Mary Louise Shields, Harvey Frazier, Charles Farrow, Joe Zangar and Bob Cathcart.

Much credit is also due to the executive committee for the success of the play. It was composed of Harvey Frazier and Miles Tooke, business managers; Roger Snow, Benson Byers and Mary Louise Shields composed the advertising committee; Virginia Madison and Benson Byers were the property managers; Paul Luenow and Carol Jean Davis were costume managers; makeup, Beth Davis and Claire Raney; and assistant to the director, Viola Mueller.

During the semester the class presented a series of one-act plays which were given at various convocations. The first to be presented was "The Grand Cham's Diamond." It was an amusing comedy and the cast was as follows: Albert Myers as Pa Perkins, Claire Raney as Ma Perkins, Bernice Bentley as Polly, Bob Cathcart as Albert and Charles Farrow as the stranger.

The second one-act play, "The Eve in Evelyn," a rollicking comedy of two elopers, who accidentally meet their parents at Twin Falls Lodge was the second in the series. The cast included Bob Loacker and Carol Jean Davis as the elopers with Paul Luenow and Mary Louise Shields as the parents. Joe Zangar was the inn-keeper.

For the special Easter convocation, "The Terrible Meek" was presented. The Captain was played by Benson Byers, the Soldier by Harlow Willard, and the Woman by Faith Freund.

The comedy, "All Gummed Up," was the fourth in the series to be given. Those in the cast were Marvin Courtney, Ruth Van Patten, Viola Mueller, John Miller and Roger Snow.

The next play staged was "Sweet and Twenty," a romantic comedy in which Angela Daugharty played the part of the girl, Harvey Frazier, the boy and Helen Gardner, the agent.

The sixth play was the drama, "Emperor Jones." Miles Tooke was very outstanding as Brutus Jones with Emory Baker as Smithers and Helen Gardner as the native girl.

The last play which was presented at a special convocation was, "The Seige." Those in the cast were: Zanab, Beth Davis; Bishara, Antoinette Arnold and Gaznla, Virginia Madison.

Debate

Indian debaters wound up a successful season Jan. 29, when they won the Harvard Club plaque for the second time. The winning resulted with a double victory over other competitors for the trophy. The plaque must be retained for three consecutive years for permanent possession.

The regular debate class consisted of thirteen students. Seven of these participated in the state arguments. They were: Dorothy Beckman, Barbara Heil, Barbara Hickey, Mildred Peterson, Mary Barrett, Gladys Wellhauser and Bob Berg. Others in the class were: Emory Baker, Arnim Knaack, Henry Savage, Doris Eichelberger, Merrill Read and Don Page.

The question for debate this season was: "Resolved, That the Federal government should adopt the policy of equalizing educational opportunities throughout the nation by means of annual land grants to the several states for public elementary and secondary education."

North Central's team has a fine record for the season. The warrior speakers have defeated Wilbur, Gonzaga and West Valley, besides the two wins from Rogers and Lewis and Clark. Several no-decision debates were held with other schools.

Miss Grace Campbell, coach of the debate team, deserves much credit for the fine results of the squad. Through her efforts the North Central debaters have earned for themselves a reputation of being one of the best teams in the city.

Members of the squad who will not be in school next year to defend the two-year winning are: Dorothy Beckman, Barbara Hell, Barbara Hickey, Mildred Peterson and Don Page, all of whom were graduated in January and Emory Boker, who graduates in June. Mary Barrett, Gladys Wellhauser, Henry Savage, Arnim Knaack, Bob Berg, Merrill Read and Doris Eichelberger, who were on this year's squad, will represent the school next year.

Orchestra

The North Central orchestra, capably directed by C. Olin Rice, has always been one of the most valuable organizations of the school. It furnishes the music for the Baccalaureate services and the Commencement exercises, besides playing at the various school entertainments.

During this semester, the members of the orchestra made a trip to Davenport and also played at Havermale junior high school.

The entire orchestra consists of 54 pieces. Members are: First violin—George Low, Bernice Bentley, Evalyn Kaesemeyer, Bill Minnick, June Jensen, Charles Uhden, Lester Hansen, Sylvia Rehfeldt, Florence Leyda, Mary Force, Gertrude Lake, Barbara Shephard, Jane Kranzush, Jack Scott, Milton Bartholomew, Bertha DeFoe.

BAND Lowell C. Bradford, director; Stanley Hughart, bandmaster; Robert Jordan, bandmaster; Albert Myers, head librarian; Harvey Frazier, business manager; Charles Uhden, uniform manager; William Kranzush, stage manager; John Kapek, property manager; Clifford Clapp, advertising manager; Robert Berg, speakers' bureau.

Band

North Central's band has earned for itself a place of distinction among school organizations of the Northwest. It is one of the largest groups of its kind, and is a school project that merits highest commendation.

Much of the success of this group is to be attributed to the competent leadership of Lowell C. Bradford. His capability as a director is evidenced in the many outstanding accomplishments of the band.

One hundred and eleven boys comprise the group this semester. Seventeen of these hold official positions. They are: Stanley Hughart and Bob Jordan, bandmasters; Harvey Frazier, business manager; Charles Uhden, uniform manager; Bill Kranzush, stage manager; John Kapek, property manager; Clifford Clapp, advertising manager; Albert Myers, head librarian; Herbert Krauel, Ed Bland, Craig Batchelor, Bill Brown, George Low, assistant librarians; Ben Blenner, Bruce Ek, Charles Neighbors, Herschel Lindsey, drum majors.

This spring the band had charge of the circulation of The News. With members of the pep band as students, the group presented a scene from an old-fashioned school room. Free issues of The News were passed to the student body at the close of the convocation.

A convocation featuring two North Central alumni, Bill Pollard and Harold Anderson, was presented Tuesday, Jan. 29, under the auspices of the band. Both of the players are prominent musicians in Spokane music circles.

On April 19 the band participated in the Junior Olympic parade. During the state Parent-Teacher meet, May 13, 14 and 15, the concert band was invited to play for the group. On May 24 the band took an active part in the Spring Musical Festival in the school auditorium. The band, chorus and orchestra were included. The band members also played at the Boy Scout circus given in the Armory. Several of their selections were broadcast over station K. G. A.

Two members of the band represented North Central at the Northwest high school band conference in Boise, April 21-24. They were John Kapek, who plays the clarinet and Albert Myers, who plays the bassoon.

The personnel of the band includes: Cornet—Ernie Anderson, Don Andrus, Eugene Bean,

Horns—Ford Bailor, Jack Banks, Don Eagle, Ray Estes, Arnim Knaack, Larry Owens, Bob Protherough, Dwight Russell, Jack Scrivens.

Baritone—Percy Achre, Robert Jordan, Austin Raney, Elmer Tyree.

Bass—John Devlin, Joe Dicarlo, Wilbur Eveland, James Gump, Earl Hildahl, Charles Uhden, Melvin Walker.

Drums—Emory Baker, Jack Byers, Dale Fitzpatrick, George Low, Ray Marquardt, George Mathison, Charles Rice, Harry Scruggs, Tom Starmont, Willard Talbot.

Trombone—Thad Allen, Walter Babbitt, Ward Barnes, Frank Burger, Raymond Crisp, Dick Frazier, Charles Johnson, Bill Kranzush, Herbert Krauel, Herschel Lindsey, Ary Nason, Dick Richards, Albert Toms, Rudy Vida, Rowland Witt.

Piccolo—Ed Bland.

Flute—Bob Berg, Laurence Ferrante.

Bassoon—Albert Myers.

Clarinet—Bill Bayne, Leroy Bradbury, Willard Burchett, Bill Byers, Bill Ecker, Bruce Ek, Norman Gourlie, Francis Hanson, Bruce Hoesley, Richard Hoffman, Stanley Hughart, Robert Kane, John Kapek, Warren McKinley, Ray Millsbaugh, Hugh Mitchell, George Petsch, Ray Radkey, Bill Weber, Bill Wyse.

The band will lose the following members by graduation: Emory Baker, Thad Allen, Jack Bierce, Clifford Clapp, Marvin Courtney, Harvey Frazier, John Kapek, Bill Kranzush, Rowland Witt, Craig Batchelor, George Mathison, Bill Bayne, Ed Bland, Bill Brown, James Gump, Francis Hanson, Bruce Hoesly, Richard Hoffman, Herbert Krauel, George Low and Albert Myers.

Operetta

The Girls' League operetta, "Margie Goes Modern," was presented May 9 in a pay convocation under the student direction of Margaret Hoffman and Muriel Lund. This is the first time that a production of this sort has been handled by students.

The story centers around an art institute. The girls of the Bowers Institute of Arts are competing for the coveted Cecilian Medal, which is awarded each year to the girl that makes the best sketch. Margie, who is a student at the Institute, has dreamed of winning the medal for a certain reason. The Trustees, who award the medal, know Margie's secret and in the past have deliberately kept her from winning. Margie despairs and when asked the reason, confides to the girls that she is a niece of Miss Bowers, who endowed the Institute with the half of her fortune with the proviso that the remaining half is to go to her niece should she win the Cecilian Medal before her twenty-first birthday. Should she fail, all of the fortune would go to the Institute. The girls are anxious to help Margie and decide upon a plan to outwit the Trustees. The plan proves successful and Margie wins the Cecilian Medal.

The leading roles were portrayed by the following:

Margie, an heiress if she wins the Cecilian Medal Roberta Moxley
Helen, Janis and Betty, students at the Institute
Jean Cleave, Joy Thompson and Dorothy Tesch
Madam Raphael, director at the Institute.....
..... Doris DeVaney

Trustees
Mercedes Warren, Agnes Daniels, Mildred Rogerson and Blanche Leytze

The chorus of girl art students was: Sylvia Byrne, Violet Fyhrle, Kay Gladstone, Betty Jones, Mardelle Leytze, Virginia Locke, Jemima Lockhead, Helen Miller, Vera Rhodes, Jean Spark, Betty Smith, Josephine Yoder, Dorothy Kennedy, Wilma Bennett, Ruth Bishop, Betty Brenner, Marjorie Cauvel, Bonnie Connor, Audrey Denson, Pearl Dutch, Thelma Larsen, Regina Limacher, Fern McLain, Pauline Miller, Anne Reed, Louise Swan, Jean Travis, Helen Van Hook, Mary Walsh and Patricia Walsh.

Hi-Jinx

The Delta club presented their sixteenth annual Hi-Jinx in the school auditorium Friday night, May 3. It consisted of three complete units of entertainment, including an all-school amateur show, a program by the members of Theatre Masque and a fashion parade by the Delts.

The performers for the amateur show were the best in the school, as they were chosen from the many who tried out. Bill Jesmer and Harold Bodvin gave an exhibition of rhythmic feet. A piano duet, "Lovely to Look at," was played by Margaret Hoffman and Benson Byers, accompanied by Sheldon Kilham's violin. Gladys Wellhauser and Ray Keller were heard in a scene from the Broadway play, "For Wint-er, for Summer." Lewis DeVoe sang "I'm Misunderstood," accompanied by Sheldon Kilham and his violin.

Zelda Comstock toe-danced to the tune of "What's the Reason." Jane Moon, little torso twister, danced to "Blue Moon." North Central's Bing Crosby, Mel Pazen, was heard in one of that star's latest successes, "Down by the River." A novelty number, "That's Granny," was rendered by Don Eagle and John Luppert. Muriel Lund sang a number in her own style. Earl and Merle Sickles wound up the show with an appropriate epilogue.

The big event of the evening was the fashion show given by the Delts. All the latest fluffy feminine fashions from gay Paree were modeled by the beautiful, dainty Delta club members.

Archle Buckley, adviser for the club, was highly pleased with the results of the show.

North Central20	Lewis and Clark46

The North Central basketball team had a successful season, winning 14 out of 23 games. Although the Indians did not win the city championship, they defeated Rogers in the next to the last game to cinch the second place position.

Nicoles, Randall and Frazier received all-city laurels in the Spokesman-Review's annual all-city teams.

The chances for North Central's winning the championship next year should be high as there are four lettermen coming back and also much "B" squad material which will be valuable.

CRESTON

Going to Creston for a pre-season game, North Central beat their hosts by a score of 32 to 10. Only three veterans of last year's N. C. squad played.

WEST VALLEY

In their second pre-season game, the North Central team romped over their opponents 40 to 23. Coach Taylor used every man on the squad in this game.

In a return game North Central again beat the West Valley five 39 to 15. Again every man on the squad was used.

ODESSA

On Dec. 15 the Indians started their regular season by travelling to Odessa where the Braves lost a game to the home-townners by a score of 15 to 13.

WENATCHEE

Seeking revenge for last year's defeat, the North Central cagers downed the Wenatchee five by a score of 22 to 18. Piper and Randall led the Indians' scoring attack in the close, hard-fought battle.

CHELAN

After the Wenatchee game the weary Red and Black warriors travelled to Chelan where they were defeated in a close, tight game. The final score was 29 to 23. Novating of Chelan was the high scorer of the game with 18 points.

COEUR D' ALENE

North Central lost a heart-breaker to the Coeur d' Alene quintet on the Lake city school's floor. The Indians led at half-time 9 to 7, but the home team came back to win from the Braves 19 to 17. Captain Bill Nicoles of the Redskins was high scorer with six points.

CENTRAL VALLEY

North Central journeyed to Central Valley and, with Sid Piper garnering 13 points, trounced the Valleyites 40 to 17. The reserves carried the brunt of the attack for North Central.

CHENEY

Too much Leonard West proved disastrous to the North Central warriors so the Indians took a drubbing from the Cheney quintet 37 to 27. The Indians led at the end of the first half by one point but the Cheney Papooses rallied in the last half to win by ten points.

Playing a return game on the N. C. courts, the Braves took revenge and beat the Cheney five 35 to 18. West again was the star, garnering 15 points. Randall and Piper divided the majority of the Indians' points each getting seven.

MEAD

Herrington led the Indians in an easy victory over the Mead Union high school team. All of the North Central players making the trip played in the game.

GONZAGA

North Central won their first city series game of the season from the Gonzaga Bulldogs by a score of 23 to 13. Gonzaga was held scoreless in the second quarter. Captain Bill Nicoles was high scorer for the game scoring 8 points.

ROGERS

The Indians won a close game from the Rogers Pirates by a score of 18 to 16. The Braves led all the way in the close, fairly rough game. Half-time score was North Central 8, Rogers 7. Barrett and Randall were the high scorers for the game.

LEWIS AND CLARK

Playing the first home game of the season, North Central was handed its first defeat in the city series by the Lewis and Clark Tigers. The final score was 44 to 25. The Indians scored first with a field goal by Captain Bill Nicoles. The score was tied at 9-all at the end of the first quarter, but the "Elses" put on a drive in the second quarter that was not to be denied. Priess and Ray Lavigne of the Tigers were outstanding for their team, and Randall and Nicoles looked good for the Braves.

GONZAGA

By a last quarter rally that netted them 11 points, the North Central Indians defeated the Bulldogs 22 to 15. Frazier of the Red and Black team was outstanding and was high scorer, garnering 10 points.

ROGERS

One of the best games of the series was witnessed when North Central beat Rogers 19 to 18 in a hair-raising contest. Rogers led at the half 9 to 6 and continued to hold that lead until, with 22 seconds to go, Barrett of the Indians looped in a pretty long shot from the middle of the floor to win the game for the Braves, 19 to 18.

LEWIS AND CLARK

Lewis and Clark put on one of their last half drives and trounced the Indians 40 to 14. The score at the half was 12 to 10 in favor of the South Siders. Frazier was outstanding for the Braves.

GONZAGA

North Central opened the second half of the city series with a win over the Gonzaga Bulldogs. It was an easy victory and all of the Indian players were used. Barrett and Herrington led the scorers. The final score was 28 to 14.

ROGERS

In a rough game marked by many fouls, the Indians tasted their third defeat in the city hoop race. The North Central team was unable to hit the basket. The final score was 30 to 24, favoring Rogers.

LEWIS AND CLARK

The North Central Warriors lost a long drawn-out game to the Lewis and Clark Tigers, 30 to 27. The Indians, trailing 12 to 4 at the first quarter, rallied till the score was tied at 19 all at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but could not get a hold of the lead.

The score was tied at 19-all, 21-all, 24-all, 25-all in the fourth quarter.

GONZAGA

The Indian warriors handed Gonzaga a sound licking winning 46 to 10. For three quarters the North Central five held the Bulldogs to a single point. Three different North Central squads played.

ROGERS

The North Central team turned on the heat in the second half and beat Rogers 41 to 16. The Indians held the Pirates to 4 points in the last half. Frazier with 17 and Randall with 13 were the high scorers.

LEWIS AND CLARK

In the final game of the 1934-35 city basketball race, the Warriors were downed 46 to 20 by the Lewis and Clark city champs. The Tigers took the lead at the beginning and held it throughout.

This ended the North Central basketball season.

By winning two games in the same evening over the 10A's and 10B's, the 12A's won the interclass basketball championship. Last year this same team won the championship. Members of the winning team were: Little, Corvi, Haberman, Dickson, Faraca, McDowell and Yake.

There should be much valuable material for next year's varsity squad found in the two sophomore runner-up teams.

Baseball

Coach Archie Buckley called the first baseball meeting March 18 and 75 aspirants turned out. Among these there were included five lettermen, Jack Holsclaw, Louis Contos, Lawrence Randall, Marlon Westerman and Will Lee.

Because the playfield is being sodded, the team was first confronted by the problem of not having a place to practice. Finally the Cannon playfield was chosen and after several nights of rain and a week of cleaning up, the diamond was ready for use and the regular practice started March 27.

Since West Valley was taken into the conference, each team will now play eight games in the current city series. The Indians won two practice games from Whitworth by scores of 21 to 10 and 8 to 4.

N. C. DEFEATS ROGERS

The Indians started off the city series by winning from a much favored Rogers nine by a score of 10 to 4. At the end of the first inning the score stood 2 to 0 in Roger's favor. This was enough for the Braves and they immediately settled down to work. The third inning showed that North Central was superior when the score read 4 to 2 in their favor. The Indians scored again in the fifth and seventh innings. The outstanding stars for North Central were Faraca and Dickson while Perry showed up well for the Rogers' Pirates.

BRAVES LOSE TO L. C.

In a thrilling game North Central lost to Lewis and Clark by a score of 4 to 3. The Tigers broke loose in the first inning to score three times and also to score in the fourth inning. North Central scored in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings. The game was thrilling to the finish and ended when the "Elsies" cut short a late Indian rally. Fifteen North Central men were left on the base paths.

BRAVES WIN FROM W. V.

The North Central nine turned loose its batting power to score in every inning and defeat West Valley, 15 to 6 in the third city series game. The loose game was marked by many errors. Chick scored four runs for the Indians, as well as turning in a creditable performance in his position as shortstop.

Valleyites, was met by a harrage of hits so that he retired in the second inning in favor of Stinger. The new pitcher was met with more hits hut he managed to last out the game.

Runje and Lee, the Red and Black pitchers, turned in fine performances, limiting the Eagles to six hits.

N. C. TROUNCES GONZAGA

The North Central Indians had a field day against Gonzaga by winning from the Bulldogs 12 to 1. The first two innings were quite slow hut in the third frame the Braves scored four times which started the fireworks. They scored again in the 4, 6 and 7 innings. Jack Holsclaw knocked a homer in the 7th. Randall and Chick led the assault for North Central each connecting three times in four trips to the plate.

INDIANS OUT-HIT PIRATES

North Central out-hit Rogers in a free hitting contest to win 8 to 3. The game was featured by three home runs, Holsclaw getting his second in 'succession. It was one of those games that keep the fielders on their toes. Hits were showered on them and fast work was necessary to hold down the final score. Dickson and Chick were outstanding for North Central.

REHN PITCHES NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME

North Central blanked Lewis and Clark when Archie Rehn pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Tigers. The final score of the game was 2 to 0. Rehn struck out 13 men and Miller 10. The game was significant in many ways. It was the first home game that the Tigers had dropped in four years. It was sweet revenge for the no-hit, no-run game that Muzatko had pitched four years ago. It put the two teams in a deadlock for first place.

Only two Lewis and Clark men reached first, one on an error and the other was hit by a pitched ball.

Clyde Chick was the star for North Central batting .666.

BOYS' TRACK

Track

Over 100 boys answered J. Wesley Taylor's call for the first track meeting March 26. The lettermen who returned this year were: Hanson and Frazier, mile; Bowsher, high jump; Graff, 440; Stevens, relay and Haberman, high hurdles. The Indian team was hit hard when the discus and the javelin were eliminated, because North Central had Ralph Peterson, who set a city record last year.

In the first meet of the year, Wes Taylor's boys scored an easy victory over Central Valley. The final score was 69 to 35.

GONZAGA MEET

On April 20 North Central journeyed to Gonzaga to take part in a double meet. The Braves came out ahead of the Bulldogs in a close score of 57½ to 46½.

Treich, Bulldog anchor man on the relay team, re-injured his knee and Van Hersett came from behind to cinch the meet. The high point man was Treisch with 13 points.

The results:

100-yard dash—Van Hersett, N. C., first;

Treich, Gonzaga, second; Morrison, N. C., third. Time, 10.4.

DISTRICT MEET

Lewis and Clark piled up a total of 61 $\frac{1}{2}$ points to take the district meet. North Central was second with 24; Rogers third with 23; and Gonzaga fourth with 17 $\frac{1}{2}$.

North Central first place winners were Van Hersett in the 100-yard dash and Bowsher in the broad jump. Also Haberman in the high hurdles and Frazier in the mile are to be entered as extra men because there was not much difference between them and the leaders.

Tennis

The first tennis meeting of the year was called by Coach Ernest L. Hix on March 1. The returning veterans of last year's squad are Bob Little, Neil Dickson, Bill Maniatis, Jim Williams, Don Breeden, Lloyd Grobe, Lloyd Walch, Orin Johnson and George Van Hersett. Jim Williams was elected captain of this year's squad.

In the preliminary matches the Braves won four out of five matches losing only to the Washington State Frosh after breaking even in the singles and losing all the doubles.

INDIANS DEFEAT PIRATES

The North Central Indians won over the Rogers Pirates in the first city series match by a score of six matches to one, losing in one of the doubles.

N. C. SWAMPS GONZAGA

North Central swept all seven matches from Gonzaga in the second city series match. This now leaves North Central and Lewis and Clark tied for first place.

LEWIS AND CLARK MATCH

For the first time in six years the North Central tennis team crashed through to a victory over Lewis and Clark to win the city championship. It was sweet revenge for Coach Hix's boys, for last year the Tigers shut out the Indians 7 to 0. The final score this year was 4 to 3.

Little, Breeden and Williams won singles for North Central and Maniatis and Johnson won the deciding doubles match that gave victory to the Braves.

Golf

When the Tamarack went to press, North Central's golf team looked to be on the road to its first city championship in the history of the school. With the first five players on the six man team letterman, the team was replete with experienced players. Jack Winston was the real veteran of the team. He first made the team when he was a freshman and is now the only four year golf letterman in the school. This spring Jack was appointed captain, a position he well deserves.

Ted Neist, number one man, is the city junior titlist. Bob McMillan was the runner-up to Ted for that championship last summer.

In the first match of the season on the Downriver course, April 20, the Indians took the Gonzaga Bullpups into camp by the score of 15-3. Jack Winston, who shot an "eighty," had the medal score. Harold Murphy had an "eighty-two." As Ted Neist, number one player, won his match before finishing eighteen holes, he didn't have a full score.

The individual scoring was as follows:

NORTH CENTRAL		GONZAGA
Ted Neist	3	D. Sherlock	0
Bill Edwards	2	D. Porter	1
Bob McMillan	2	E. Durgan	1
Jack Winston (C)	3	E. Durgan	0
Harold Murphy	2	C. Moliter	1
Wright Dearborn	3	J. Durgan	0
15		3

On Saturday morning, April 27, the North Central golfers continued their march toward the city title by vanquishing the Rogers Pirates 11-6. If Ted Neist had played eighteen holes, he probably would have had the medal score as the holes he played were very near par figures. But as he won his match before finishing the round, he didn't have an eighteen hole score.

The individual scoring was as follows:

NORTH CENTRAL		ROGERS
Ted Neist	3	Roy Bishop	0
Bill Edwards	3	Willie Johnson	0
Bob McMillan	3	Max Libenthal	0
Jack Winston	2	Bill Calrd	1
Ford Ballor	0	Don Newton	3
Wright Dearborn	0	Bob Pooley	2

Saturday, May 4, the North Central golfers suffered their first defeat of the season on the Downriver course by a score of 12-5 at the hands of the Lewis and Clark Tigers. The match marked the half-way point in the city race and put the Tigers in the lead by a margin of eight points over the Indians. The South Side school now has a total of 20 points secured in three matches as compared to 21 tallies amassed by the North Central linksmen.

Ted Neist had a par 72, the best 18-hole score made in inter-school competition by an individual this season.

On Saturday, May 11, on the Downriver golf course the North Central divot-diggers overwhelmingly defeated the Gonzaga Bullpup golf team by a score of 14-2. This victory enabled Guy Barnes' boys to close the gap between the Indians and the league leading Lewis and Clark Tigers to six points.

RIFLE

The North Central Rifle Team had one of its most successful seasons this semester. Although they did not win the championship from Lewis and Clark this year, they won from the Tigers once and were beaten twice. The Indians also beat the All-City Girls' team four times. The members who participated in the matches were: Lutz, Barnes, Griffin, Hamilton, Braden, Kohlman, McGarry, Wyse and Elmer. P. H. Newman is the faculty adviser and Wally Burnham, the coach.

PLAYFIELD IS SODDED

The playfield is being soddied after many months of saving money from student activities. The sodding was started in March and will probably be ready for a few games next fall.

Approximately $1500 will be used by the start of school next fall for various expenses such as a top layer of dirt, spreaders, labor and a mower. The hope now of the sodding kept it from being done before.

Girls' Athletics

SENIOR A GIRLS OUTSTANDING IN SPORTS

Among the graduating senior girls are several who have been prominent in sports.

Florence Leyda was quite a skating enthusiast. She has earned her shield and bar. Elizabeth (Betty) Buchecker has won her shield partly through participation in that sport also.

Catherine Cory has been active in baseball, basketball, track and she has her shield.

Helen Gale has proved her talent in the terpsichorean art through her work in the operetta. She also coached the dancing in the student-directed operetta, "Margie Goes Modern." She has been awarded a shield and bar.

Betty Lee Hancock and Jeanne Peak, who both have shields, are equally capable in this line.

The famous Johnson twins, Dot and Dash, are capable athletes in three sports. They have been ranking doubles players in tennis this spring, besides being out for track and basketball.

Margaret Hoefer served as chairman of the personal efficiency department for one semester. She was chosen because of her all-round participation in girls' activities, being especially prominent in operetta dancing. She has her shield and bar.

Dorothy Kennedy has won her shield and was this year's tennis captain. She also has been active in operetta work and in other girls' sports.

Betty Manring has won her shield and bar, was the student assistant in the P. E. department and has been active in baseball and basketball.

Joy McCallum is one of the most active girls in sports at North Central. She has participated in tennis, baseball, basketball and volleyball. She has won her shield.

Laura Ward has been prominent in hiking, baseball, basketball and has won her shield.

Pauline Wright has been very active in baseball and in other sports.

RECREATION

Each new season finds the recreation hour gaining in popularity. There is always a rush of students to the cafeteria on Monday nights after school. The major interest seems to center around table tennis or ping pong, as the game is commonly called. Several boxes of anagrams have been added to the properties this year, and this game has met with decided favor. Other diversions include checkers and jig-saw puzzles. Fifteen sessions took place during the season, which commenced Dec. 3 and continued for about four months. Each period averaged 250 recreationalists.

Two tournaments, table tennis and checker, were played in connection with the after-school activities. In the former, 50 boys and 20 girls participated. Alice Oatman and Sam Brown took winning honors over the large field of competition. Those prominent in the contest gave exhibition matches in the gymnasium March 20. The checker tournament in which 28 people competed was won by Rodney Beaudette.

Neil Dickson and Jack Crawford were in charge of arranging tables and distributing games. Their assistants were Don Davis, Earl Dunton, Alice Oatman and Dorothy Kennedy. Jack Holsclaw, James Boot and Bill Manlatis were the three most consistent workers on the clean-up committee.

A great deal of credit is due the teachers who supervised and worked with the students. Those who gave much of their time were: Miss Mary Sidney Mitchell, Miss Conah Mae Ellis, Mrs. Hermine Baylis, Miss Belle Wynne, P. H. Nygaard, C. A. Chandler, C. R. Randall and L. C. Bradford. Others who helped are: Miss Emma Dalquest, Miss Christine McRae, Miss Ruth Winkley and Miss Violet Starkweather.

ALL-ACTIVITY AWARDS

All-activity awards are given each semester to girls who have earned 400 points by taking part in school activities. These awards are in the form of red and black shields with the letters "N. C." on them, mounted on a white background. A black bar is awarded for each additional 400 points. Credit may be gained by participating in any of the many girls' sports, by doing Girls' League work, by having a thorough doctor's examination and in various other ways.

Following are the names of the senior A girls who have earned a sufficient number of points to receive the award for either the

The management of the girls' tennis team has run somewhat more smoothly this spring due to the absence of the boys' baseball activities from the playfield which have proved a big distraction in the past.

Team practice nights were every Monday and Thursday. Several tennis classes during the day took the place of regular gym periods. The six paved courts being directly across from school have proved a great asset to all North Central netsters.

The following four inter-school tournaments took place this spring:

May 1 with West Valley—10 singles, 5 doubles.

May 20 with Rogers—10 singles, 5 doubles.

May 25 with West Valley—15 singles, 6 doubles.

May 27 with Lewis and Clark—15 singles, 6 doubles.

Frances Oatman served as manager and Dorothy Kennedy as captain. The girls lost to the team by graduation are: Dorothy Bradford, Dot Johnson, Dash Johnson, Dorothy Kennedy, Joy McCallum, Julia Wibom, LaRene Van Dissel and Maxine Woellner.

SKATING

Ice skating has proved popular with the students at North Central. The season started during the latter part of November and continued well into February. Over 135 people were present at one of the skating parties of which there were 16 in all. These took place on Wednesdays after school when a special rate of ten cents was available to North Central skaters at the Spokane Ice Arena. Many of those who attended became interested in figure skating and are now aspirants to that higher form of this delightful winter recreation.

Student managers were: Larry Owens, Marian Mallett, Barbara Mastro, Dorothy Barnes and Violette Jacobs. A great deal of credit is due Miss Elsa Pinkham, who is a figure skater of considerable ability, for promoting and making these skating parties possible.

Skating is one of the two activities at North Central in which both boys and girls can participate.

HIKING

Hiking is one of the most important activities for girls at North Central. It is a form of recreation which can prove very valuable after high school days are over.

Miss Mary Sidney Mitchell, faculty adviser, has been ably assisted this semester by four students. Edna Mae Lawrence and Muriel Green had charge of selecting places and dates for hikes; Helen Stimpson handled publicity; Ethel Van Liew recorded mileage and points made by each girl.

One-third of the hikes took place on Saturdays and two-thirds on Fridays after school. Among places visited were: Minnehaha park, Liberty park, the Castle, Bowl and Pitcher and an overnight trip to Liberty lake to which mothers were also invited. Each hike averaged 30 to 35 girls.

TRACK

The girls' track meet, which took place on May 28, had a fine turnout. Under the direction of J. Wesley Taylor, the boys' track team officiated at and directed the events very efficiently.

Mercedes Warren served as chairman. Some of the events were: 75-yard dash, 50-yard dash, 220-yard dash, relay, baseball throw, basketball throw, high jump, broad jump, etc. Catherine Cery, Norma Lunneborg and Ruth Van Patten proved themselves capable tracksters.

TENNISQUOITS

Tennisquits, or quilt-tennis as it is sometimes called, is a sport about which most people know little. The properties consist of a net as is used in volleyball and a rubber ring much like a miniature automobile tire. Any number of persons from one to ten can play on a side. Tennisquits and volleyball are quite similar. The former, however, does not require as much physical ability as it does alertness.

In order to be able to use the gymnasium, tennisquits had to be played before school. Twelve matches of single and seven matches of doubles were organized. Alice Oatman defeated Ethel Van Liew for the singles title and Marjorie Lee and Lucille Lotta won doubles honors from Naomi Burke and Ethel Van Liew. Virginia Kincaid and Olive Witham were manager and chairman respectively.

VOLLEYBALL

Volleyball had a fine turnout this season of 80 girls. The eight following teams were formed: Joi de Vivre, Fireflies, Pests, Amazons, Comanches, Little Women, Whozits and Frosh. Marjorie Lee, 11A, was manager and Ruth Hobbs, 9A, served as chairman. Joi de Vivre was composed of senior girls. They are: Virginia Locke, Norma Lunneborg, Betty Manning, Joy McCallum, Mary Portier, Laura Ward, Bertha West, Pauline Wright, Eleanor Hedin and Margaret Hoefler. Both Miss Elsa Pinkham and Miss Rita Jahreis served as faculty directors.

The Pests, 10B team, defeated the Fireflies to win the tournament.

FIRST AID

The first aid course which started during the winter and continued for 13 weeks was open to any girl in school. Hour lessons were given every Monday night after school. The following girls passed the examination and will receive life-saving awards indicative of their achievements: Naomi Burke, Ruth Chafee, Ellen Freed, Jean Kinney, Bernice Lambert, Romaine Pearson, Ava Perry, Phyllis Powell, Betty Reiling, Loretta Stanford, Maude Taschereau, Ethel Van Liew and Pauline Williams. Phyllis Powell acted as chairman.

OH, FER SOSH GAKES!

Cliff Hampton: When I was a baby I was left an orphan.

Jim Williams: What did you do with it?

Will Stoddard: I'll tell you Lewis and Clark kids just what's wrong with your school.

Elsie: Nothing doing!

Will: Yes, that's the trouble exactly!

GIRLS' BASEBALL Lucille Rynearson, manager; LuElla Philipson, chairman; Miss Rita Jahrelss and Miss Virginia Rothacker, coaches.

DOROTHY BRADFORD WINS NATIONAL RECOGNITION

In recognition of the tercentenary of public secondary education, high school students this year were asked to write a short essay on a phase of high school education, at the suggestion of L. W. Brooks, chairman of Contests for the Celebration Committee.

First prize, offered by Greyhound Lines by special arrangement with Scholastic, is a free trip to Washington, D. C. with all expenses paid.

A jury headed by Prof. Baldwin Maxwell, of Iowa University, chose for this honor the essay, "What My High School Has Done for Me," written by Dorothy Bradford, North Central senior A.

The trip to Washington will be in company with the leaders in the Scholastic News Examination. Nightly stop-overs will be provided at interesting points along the route, with accommodations in first class hotels. Dorothy will meet the News Examination winners in Washington about the last of June for a three day visit. She will arrive in Washington June 20.

WIT FROM THE MOUTH OF BABES

Benson Byers: A modern girl's hair may look like a mop, but that doesn't worry her. She doesn't know what a mop looks like.

Harvey Frazier: A woman's words flow like a beautiful river, dam them.

Henry Marcus: The average girl seems to think a flat tire is all right providing the boy has the jack.

Barbara Brodrecht: As only the artist can tell what his picture means, he ought to be hung alongside the picture.

Yvonne Gerimonte: If at first you don't succeed, stay as sweet as you are.

Will Lee: The only reason Barber's College doesn't have a football team is that there's a penalty for clipping.

Cliff Hampton: An apple a day may keep the doctor away, but it's best to use rotten tomatoes on bill collectors.

Miss Boehme: Students, there will be only a half day of school this morning.

German class: Whoopee! Hooray!

B. B.: We will have the other half this afternoon.

A JUNGLE TALE

by Pius Caputo

Along came a big mama she-elephant trudging through the deep, deep, jungle of darkest Africa when, presto, and she heedlessly stepped on a mamma partridge just a few inches from the nest of little partridges. The kind-hearted she-elephant saw what she had done and having babies of her own who sometimes got very cold, she felt very sorry for the little birds and sat down over the nest to keep them warm.

Moral: What is home without a mother? Yeh, we think so too.

Lawrence Amcs: What's the matter with Donald lately? His acting has been frightful.

Paul Beebe: He's terribly in love.

Larry: Why doesn't he get married?

Paul: He can't marry himself, can he?

Mr. Endslow: What is the commonest conductor for electricity?

Art Enerson: Why-er-er-

Mr. Endslow: Correct.

It is a very sad thought, gentle readers, that your children, twenty years from now, will be reading these same jokes.

YES SIR!

Helen Talmage: I'm starting a world-wide movement against cosmetics. Powder shall never touch my nose.

Audrey Ryan: So you intend to be a shining example?

THE RIGHT CURE

Jack Huffman: Honest, I'm beginning to think you have kleptomania. Why don't you do something for it?

Rex Ashlock: I am. I'm taking things for it.

"As Mr. Jones mounted the stage, all eyes were fixed on the large red nose he displayed. Only years of patient cultivation could have produced an object of such brilliance."

And this is what advertising in the Tamarack does to the advertiser:

Solicitor: Why don't you advertise?

Advertiser: It's no use. It ruins my business.

S.: Ruins your business. How?

A.: I tried it last year and the students bought nearly everything I had.

Phyllis Taylor: Tell me, how would you advise a girl to keep her youth?

Wise old gal: Get him young, treat him rough, and never introduce him to another girl.

Betty Burk: I'm through. I'm going to leave you. There are lots more fish in the sea.

Bill Brown: Yes, but if nobody has a better line than you have they'll all stay there.

"I've just discovered I've bought thousands of gallons of real estate."

"Are you intoxicated?"

"No, I'm in Florida."

Beth Davis: I was full of hopes last night when father walked in and spoiled everything.

Mama Davis: Did your hopes disappear?

Beth: I'll say; right under the sofa!

THEM'S MY SENTIMENTS EXACTLY!

A statistician says flying is as safe as walking. And it's just talk like that that keeps aviation from getting anywhere.

And many a person asked: Horses can sleep standing up says a writer. But why do they wait until we have placed a bet on them to do it?

Mr. Minard was in a none too pleasant mood. "Roger Snow," he roared, "Why were you absent yesterday." And the reply was, "Please, sir, I went to my brother's wedding." "And whom did he marry." "A woman, sir." "Idiot," yelled the teach, "Did you ever hear of anyone marrying a man." Yes, sir, my sister."

When Mr. Neuman was out of his physics class for a few minutes someone drew a not so complimentary caricature of teacher on the board. When P. H. returned to the room he asked, "Who is responsible for this outrage."

BURGAN'S

Meadows. We hope for a three point landing on the back of your neck, Jack.

Dick Wilson and Dave Stickles leave the art of really being funny to Betty Jean Fritsch and her effervescent assistant "Tiny" Hatfield.

Bob Lewis leaves a small bit of laziness and sleepiness to the only fellow we know of that has the facilities, Jack Crawford.

John Sullivan will hestow upon John McCrackin that reputed cast-iron "tummy."

Bruce Hoesly wills his way of doing things the way they should be done to Don Davis.

Jack Holsclaw will let Neil Dickson have that little knack of hitting the pellet over the far-off fence.

Anne Jones has a few quiet ways which she would gladly leave to anybody.

John Dinsmore's few, pokey ways should be appreciated by Wright Dearborn. They seem to be right in order.

Henry Marcus leaves his ability to creep up the stairs without making any noise to Art Nelson.

Jean Sharp, whose ability to organize and direct parties is an asset, leaves behind her fond remembrances of a news party to Maxine McFarland, if Maxine needs them.

Willy Burchett leaves his billiard playing ability to Ray Coffeen.

Jane Moon hands over her "twisting torso" to the one and only football hero, John Christie.

Phyllis Boomer leaves her "teacher's ways" to anyone who wants them.

Irene Schumacher hands down her ability of making funny faces to those little frosh who are always making them.

Margie Neuman is going to grant that sweet smile to Effa Frese.

Bob Dickson leaves his "fishing" pole to Walt Burger. "Slinky" has already been landed.

Don Breeden, the sole heir of the graduated Doris Fields, receives that hang-around-the-halls complex.

"Kissy" Cathcart leaves that not so bad first name to Ray Bradley.

Doris Elchelberger is the lucky one who inherits the last name of Bill Kranzush.

In the will of Angela Daugharty, she has provided for the amusement of many, the good playing ability of one mouth organ. This is left to the finest hay-seed coming to this school.

Harlow Willard leaves his manly art of getting along with teachers to Reggie Freeman.

Marvin Courtney leaves the ability to act old to Laura Webster.

It is hoped that those who have been mentioned in the above will, shall be thankful for what they have received and grateful to those who have contributed. Those who have been neglected may continue along their merry way with a relieved conscience.

Signed,

John Miller: Whatcher doin' this evening?
Craig Batchelor: Reading some racy literature.

Johnny: Boccaccio?

Craig: Naw, Ben-Hur.

Epilogue:

This is the end we hope you have liked it
 When you do read it don't have a flt.

Jack Winston got a job as an elevator boy, but he couldn't keep it cuz' he couldn't remember his route.

Mrs. Leonard gave Emory Baker the following reference:

To who it may concern: In regard to the gentleman in question, he plays Lear, Julius Caesar, Cardinal Richelieu and Billiards—the last best.

Yours truly,

Grace D. Leonard

At last we have found out why fat women are seldom venturesome. Nothing ventured, nothing gained, you know.

She made Senior Dramatics because she possessed the ability to make the most painful tragedy a source of general amusement.

success through the plans of the committee in charge: Pauline Lee, Irene Schumacher, Mel Haberman, Harold Murphy and Bill Nicoles.

The News, edited by Will Lee, had a successful semester with the aid of many aspiring young journalists. The Tamarack, headed by Robert Little has issued one of the best annuals ever published due to the efforts of E. E. Green and the staff.

The next thing we knew we were all on a great platform with our "sheep-skins" in our hands. We looked strange to one another in our caps and gowns. Somehow everyone was grown up and on their own.

This completes the history of our trail through North Central, and when all is said and done we are really sorry that our wanderings are over.

'Tis now the spring of '35

We're leaving these dear halls

Though we are sad, we're much alive

'Tis in the spring of '35.

Dorothy Kennedy: The answer is right on the end of my tongue.

Mr. Endslow: Well, be sure and don't swallow it: It's arsenic.

Harlow Willard is such a good speaker that all he needs is a course of electrocution, just to finish him off.

She was only a banker's daughter—

But, oh how she could hold their interest!

Bob Jones's theme song:

Some people sleep at home,
Some people sleep at sea,
But a good backseat in any class
Is good enough for me.

Lawrence Randall: How can you afford to take so many girls to such expensive restaurants?

Bob Dickson: Easy! Just before we go in, I ask each girl if she hasn't been putting on weight.

Betty Heath: May I have some stationery?
Hotel Clerk (haughtily): Aro you a guest of the house?

Betty: Heck, no. I am paying twenty dollars a day.

Social item: At the Eta Beta Phi masquerade dance Saturday night, Don Livenspargar won first prize masked as a wet blanket. (But you can't fool us, we'll bet he wasn't masked.)

Was the class in an uproar when the teacher entered the class and said, "Order, please," and then Bill Brown absently answered: "I am sandwich and a cup of coffee."

Jean Sharp: I thought I told you to come after supper.

Any Gonzaga lad: That's what I came after.

When Cleo West received a letter with "xx" at the bottom she felt quite insulted. You see she thought she was getting the double cross.

Irene Schumacher: Was it a big wedding?

Bill Nicoles: I got in line twice to kiss the bride and nobody noticed it.

"I say, Jane, isn't it time for baby to say, 'Daddy'?"

"No, John. I've decided not to tell him who you are until he gets stronger."

We hear that a member of the biology department has perfected a new eggplant that promises to outstrip the hen far in the matter of production.

Helen Gale: So then I jumped off a ten story building but I wasn't killed because I landed in a safety zone.

"Iceland," said teacher in the geography class, "is about as large as Siam."

"Iceland," wrote John at examination time, "is about as large as teacher."

Steve Ferguson: What's the last thing a surgeon does when he operates on my father?

Ad Benner: Ah, I know. Sews your old man.

"Who is your favorite author?"

"My father."

"What did he ever write?"

"Checks."

That's right!

You can always judge a lady by her clothes. And in a trolley car you can always tell a gentleman by his get up.

Jack Crawford: My dad blamed me for the three tire blowouts we had.

Helen Gale: Was he mad long?

Jack: No, I patched things up.

Thelma Sanford: Are you a go-getter, big boy?

Ray Mellen: You bet.

Sandy: Well, go get me a hamburger.

"Does Gertrude know much about automobiles?"

"I'll say she doesn't. She asked me if I could cool the engine by stripping the gears."

Mr. Kennedy: My girl, when I was your age I was glad to get dry bread to eat.

Dorothy: You're much better off now that you're living with us, aren't you papa?

We know a girl so stupid that she thinks that since one can golf on the golf links, you box on the cuff links.

Pauline Lee: The coroner pronounced it suicide.

Bette Craig: Well, isn't that the way Webster pronounced it?

Muriel Hammer: If a burglar should break into the basement, would the coal shute?

Ellen McDonough: No, but the kindling wood.

Gordon Boyles: Is she very pretty?

Harley Yake: Pretty! Say, when she gets on a street-car, the advertising is a total loss.

The speech class was to give pantomimes that third period. Al Corvi got up when he was called, went to the front of the room, and stood still.

"Well," said Mrs. Leonard after a few minutes wait for something to happen, "What do you represent?"

"I'm imitating a man going up in an elevator," was the immediate response.

This is how some of our illustrious seniors will be applying for jobs.

I don't suppose you don't know of nobody who don't want to hire nobody to do nothing, don't you.

Little: Gee, you have a lot of hum jokes in this paper.

Gardner: Oh, I don't know. I threw a bunch of them in the stove and the fire just roared!

Paul Lucnow: Have you ever heard a story that made your face crawl?

Bob Lewis: Sure.

P. L.: How did your feet look as they went past your face?

Miss Ellis: What do those people down in the News office do when they leave school?

Mr. Bradford: Well, somebody said that they all went to a boiler factory to live so that they would feel at home.

Newly arrived Englishman (watching archery practice in the park): "I knew America was behind in preparedness, but I didn't know things were this bad."

Barber: Haven't I shaved you before?

Will Lee: No, I got those scars playing football.

X: And when that famous traveler returned to Spokane, he fell on his knees and kissed the sidewalk.

Y: Emotion?

Z: No, banana peel.

Nurse: (going off duty) Is there anything else?

Patient: Yes, kiss me good night.

Nurse: I'll send in the orderly, he does all the dirty work.

Martha Sawyer: I told him he mustn't see me anymore.

Jane Sawyer: What did he do?

Martha: He put out the lights.

At sixty Bill drove down the street

Saying, "Life, it ain't so worse,"

Then spied a pair of silk clad knees—

Rigor mortis, flowers, hearse.

Teacher: Tom, why are you scratching your head?

Tom Fry: Because no one else knows where it itches.

Fem: Did the lion ever bite you?

Trainer: Yes, hut he got well.

The laundry is a place where the clothes are worn out.

We hope these jokes have pleased you.

And the puns are not a bore,

For really, it's hard to find some

You've never heard before.

But if you've heard these wise-cracks

At some earlier day,

Just read them over once again,

And then laugh anyway!
